Being set back from the road beyond a mature planted frontage and double opening electrically operated gates, upon entering you are greeted by a large courtyard and parking area, providing ample space to circulate and access the array of outbuildings.

Entering the property from the front, a reception hallway provides a welcoming feel and an instant reminder of the rich heritage of this delightful 13th Century home. There are six reception rooms that run in a linear fashion, providing a wealth of uses, depending on a buyers needs. These comprise a drawing room, library, sitting room, dining room, impressive vaulted family room and a useful home office.

A farmhouse style kitchen provides the focal point for the house, and is fitted with a bank of bespoke units and four-oven AGA, around a large farmhouse table and opening to the adjacent family room that boasts an imposing vaulted ceiling with exposed beams and brickwork.

Access to the first floor is provided by a main and back staircases. The main bedroom is semi vaulted with exposed beams and has an en-suite bathroom. An inner room / study space links through to a generous double guest bedroom and modern shower room, combining to create an alternative principal suite. Approached via the back staircase are two further double bedrooms and family bathroom Externally, the property sits well within its mature plot, that has been landscaped to provide a sociable outside space linking the reception rooms together to provide superb opportunities for al fresco dining and entertaining in the summer months. An expanse of lawn then extends to the boundary and meets a delightful walled kitchen garden.

There are several outbuildings that are available for a multitude of uses, all centred around the courtyard area with hardstanding. These comprise two large, open sided Dutch barns, three loose boxes, extensive workshops with vehicular access and linked stores. A large utility room is attached to a double garage that has been converted to provide a two-storey gym/recreation room. Depending on a buyers needs, these useful spaces could serve a commercial use or for hobbies requiring secure onsite storage.

For those who wish to explore the rural aspect of this home, there are 22 acres or thereabouts in all, comprising the formal gardens, yard and several undulating paddocks that extend outward to the northern boundary. Mainly pasture, this land would serve well for livestock, or those with an equestrian interest.

To note, there is a public footpath which is located near to the north easterly boundary, as shown on the land plan.
